ITALY'S WAR LEADER.

THE HOPE OF THE ITALIAN ARMY.

Career of General Cadorna.

Just as General Joffre was practically unknown outside of France before the beginning of the war, so Italy's leader comes upon the European battlefield unheralded and unknown to the American observer, says an American paper. In Italy, however, he was already famous.
Count Luigi Cadorna has long been regarded there as the army's one hope and the one man who has the ability to revive its glory. An Italian writer, a friend of the Count, characterizes him, in an article contributed to the Brooklyn Eagle, by these two words "bravery" and "calm." These describe his career and his temperament.His quick mind has built up a great house of military knowledge; it has judged keenly both interior and exterior; it has foreseen and planned long in advance, but always beneath a surface of calmness and without the friction of disordered thought. He maintains his balance in the most trying circumstances and refuses to yield to the bludgeonings of a hasty argument or prejudiced persuasion. Such in the praise given him by his friends, and these glimpses of his career seem to bear it out. The Count has been a soldier, as his father was before him. It was from his father that he first learned the value of iron discipline, in an incident that occurred when he was young in the service.When he was appointed Lieutenant, we read at the time of his appointment.
"He was attached to the staff of his father, who was commanding the army division at Florence. The father was named commander-in-chief of the army which was to take Rome. Here was something to excite the heart of a brilliant young officer burning with desire to win glory and fame. But the old general, feeling that the presence of his son on his staff might be interpreted as an act of favoritism, promptly displaced him."Louis was much chagrined, but did not protest. So well did he understand and retain this lesson that on the very day when war was declared on Austria he sent his own son, who was then his ordnance officer, to rejoin his regiment. This time the younger man had no cause to complain. The cavalry regiment in which he was a lieutenant had been placed in the front line.A BRILLIANT TEACHER.
In 1875, at the age of twenty-five, he was made a captain, and his career thereafter was rapid and sure. As he rose in the service he endeavored more and more to instill into the rather sluggish blood of the old army the ideas of a new era. Here for the first time he met with quite natural difficulties, and we are told that he was "Some colonels of the old school did not look with a favorable eye upon instructions which upset their own ideas, and did everything in their power to combat them. But these instructions always had a special charm for the younger officers, and Captain Cadorna, smiling and persistent, also knew how to counteract the efforts in favor of the old routine in such a charming manner that the fruits of his teachings were always very brilliant."Attached finally to the staff of General Pianelli, who commanded the army corps of Verona, he found a man who knew how to appreciate him and who consequently furnished him the best opportunity for completing his own education, and for his development. He was one of the most distinguished generals of the Italian army, and without doubt one of the most successful. While under his orders it was necessary to follow the straight and narrow path at all times. Very active himself, he never permitted laziness. Well informed himself, progress made in his own science. Himself a master to the tips of his fingers, he demanded strict military manners from his subordinates. A soldier as he was, he posed a severe discipline. Louis Cadorna was delighted. He worked with determination, made some studies relating to the Italian-Austrian frontier, which are a marvel of detail and precision. He published anofficers' manual for times of war, which is a model of style, and at the same time a remarkable military text-book.Now, in these days Verona was the center of some memorable maneuvers.
Having in mind the reputation of General Pianelli, the Minister of War sent under his orders all those division-generals who he held in only a mediocre esteem. The minister was counting on the inflexibility and hard bandwagons of Pianelli, who was commander of the Blue party, to "break" them, once the maneuvers were over.
Cadorna was the chief of staff of his division. As he did everything himself and performed his duties with a rare knowledge and astonishing brightness, all the generals of an inferior order made a brilliant success, and the Minister of War could address them only his best compliments. General Pianelli, however, who knew the secret of the situation, called Cadorna, who was then only a colonel, and said to him, smiling:
"My dear Colonel, I have read all the reports written by the generals who have under my command, on the subject of the great maneuvers. Please accept my sincere compliments."It was supposed that Count Cadorna would become Italy's supreme military commander some time before he actually did so. He was expected to succeed the renowned Count Faleitta at his retirement, and the Minister of War was given the appointment. There was much comment from the admirers of Cadorna, but never a word from him. Calmly and without giving a sign of his own feelings in the matter, he went about his duties as the military subordinate of his friend and commander. "His death not long afterward gave Cadorna, the post at last, as a time when his up-to-date knowledge, energy, and executive ability were most needed.As the writer remarks in conclusion:
"Every one knows in what condition the Italian army found itself when Louis Cadorna became its chief. He did everything possible to revive its energy and to overcome the 'slackers.' But he found in General Grandi, the Minister of War, the stubborn opposition of an official overcome by a military discipline. It was necessary to submit it was a question of discipline.
During a few months General Cadorna just submitted. But when the war broke out, when Signor Salandra and the King called him before them in order to confide to him the task of putting the army in war condition, and to seek his advice on the selection of the new Minister of War, his heart swelled with joy."And during eight months he has worked day and night. He has given to every one the faith that is in his own heart. He has been the lieutenant and tutelary genius of Italian military politics. It was on this occasion that the two essential qualities of his character—vitality and calm—performed miracles. Everything was to be done, and everything has been done.
The required time has been consumed, but not an instant more. One day General Cadorna said: 'We are ready.' He said it with his clear-cut voice, in a decisive and tranquil tone, his bright eyes smiling, and no one dared to doubt for an instant."

THE GIRL AND HER CAREER.

Dangers of Too Early Special Training.

The Education Section of the British Association, was concerned principally with a series of papers on the education of girls, with special reference to professional education.
Dealing generally with women's education, Miss Haldane said we had to face special questions raised by war conditions, and must consider how to meet them.
The danger at present was that girls were hurried through the training considered required before they had had time to think for themselves or find themselves as individuals. The danger was difficult to everywhere at present, but we must strive for a really broad general education, permanent. Whatever our economic condition, we should struggle against the false economy of curtailing the education of the nation.Mrs. W. L. Courtney, in a paper on the Education of Girls for Professional Life,

A FAVORITE RUN DOWN

The golfer, the football player and the all-round athlete know the value of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is just the thing for a run-down after a hard game.
All aches, sprains, rheumatism, neuralgia and burns and swellings are cured in one third less time than by any other treatment.
For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.devoted special attention to the occupations which can be begun at an early age (e.g., secretarial and clerical work, journalism, etc.). There were, she said, two rival views:—(1) That vocational training should begin at 15 or 16 either during the last school year or in a special school, carefully selected; and (2) that vocational training should in no case begin before 17, and preferably should be deferred till 18.
Those who held this view advocated the non-inclusion in the curriculum of the secondary school.It was clear that the only person who certainly gained by the girl beginning young was the parent. The girl did not gain, for she felt the strain of work more severely, and chafed more against the long hours and confinement. And the employer's gain was illusory, for, though the girl might be more amenable, she was less intelligent and attentive at 16 than at 18, and in the long run probably of less use.
If the girl was not to begin work-earning work at 18, and was to wait till 18, she should spend the years from 16 to 18 at school, receiving a good general education.
But it was argued at 18 or earlier was indispensable, then from 16 to 17 at school, and from 17 to 18 at a secretarial or business training school, carefully selected.Miss E. A. Charlesworth, dealing with the preparation of girls for clerical work, generally endorsed Mrs. Courtney's views.
There were strong reasons, she said, why specialized instruction should not begin too early. Clerical work was of an unsettling nature; it did not like a craft develop creative faculties and constructive powers, and was not educative unless and until a broad foundation of general education had been laid. Without this broad foundation the work tended to have a narrowing influence upon the mind and a demoralizing effect upon the powers; the worker quickly arrived at a point beyond which no further development seemed possible.Miss R. Oldham contended for a more liberal education for the girl who was to be the housewife. We should seek to remove the stigma of inferiority that rested on girls whose tastes lay in the direction of domestic and manual accomplishments. Such girls should be discovered early; to this end every girl should, at some period of her school life, devote the greater part of one year to the domestic arts. This training should be supplementary to a broad general education, which, far from making a girl contented with her lot, would do much to show her the importance of the service she was rendering to the nation.

FISH FOR BRITAIN.

Prosperity of Ymuiden Trawler Fleet.

The Gazette of Holland says: Now that North Sea fishing is almost exclusively being left to the neutrals, by which more particularly Ymuiden, with its big trawlers, is benefiting, the catches are extraordinarily big, the trips short, and the prices made for the fish very high for the time of year, so that the steamtrawling business is just now flourishing.
The difficulties encountered in the standing of fish to Belgium, where 30 per cent. of our fish was sent before the war, has caused dealers to look for other opportunities to place their goods; and these they have found in Britain. For some time past the consignments, varying between 600 and 1,200 baskets and cases of fish to 15 to 100 K.G., have been sent thither by the British cargo boats which continue to maintain a regular service between Amsterdam and London just as if there was no war and no submarines. As a result of various difficulties encountered in this manner of transport, it was, and the high freight, a number of prominent Ymuiden dealers have just taken steps to open a private service with Britain, which is being inaugurated this week and for which a steamer was chartered at Groningen. It appears probable that no long as the war lasts this trade with Britain will be considerably further extended.

DEATH BEFORE CAPTURE.

100 Britons Who Fought A German Battalion.An officer of the Liverpool Regiment, who was attached to the staff of one of the infantry brigades during the recent battles around Hooge, told a graphic story of the fighting in the Manchester Guard on year-day. He said:At a point between the two lines a number of wounded and unarmoured men had taken shelter. They numbered under a hundred, and in the afternoon, when the enemy were pressing home an attack, with the idea of flinging back our supports, these men found themselves up against a battalion of Germans who had been brought up to reinforce their fighting line.
By all the rules these men were done for, and it was only as a matter of form that the Germans called on them to surrender.
The corporal who had taken command of this band of stragglers, ordered a "cut and run," and in a few minutes the little band were fighting for dear life against the saber foe. The Britons put up a dandy fight, and time after time the enemy attack was smashed to smithereens against that little force.In the end ammunition failed, and the corps, now reduced to one-half or less, had to withstand with the bayonet a new and furious onslaught. The Germans charged down like a hurricane, but the little line stood firm. In the end, however, some force left, and the weary survivors died where they stood, rather than surrender. Their stand, however, had saved our line at a vital point.LOSING WEIGHT

WHO'S WHO IN JAPAN

Edited and published by S. KURIKI.

The first (1913) edition is already issued.

Biographies of over 6,000 people who are well-known in society and of several hundred foreigners associated with Japan appear in the book. Quite new materials and accurate sketches, both being utterly free from prejudice.

Many portraits are inserted. The book contains over 1,400 pages.

The price is 5 (12/-) or $3 per copy.
Orders for the book should be accompanied by payment.

Subscribers for the second annual edition of "Who's Who in Japan" will be allowed a reduction of one yen.

The registered postage is 18 sen, to Korea and China 40 sen and to Europe & America 70 sen or $3 cents.

It is a GOOD ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

Many influential papers of the world noticed this work in the highest terms.

For example, The Daily Mail says:- "Yet another 'Who's Who' is apt to be first to regard it as a curiosity, as a sign that the East has now become Western practically almost to the last detail. But Who's Who in Japan is far more than a curiosity; it is a very sound and useful reference book. It is printed in English and contains brief biographies, on the accepted model of prominent men in Japan.
Mr. Kuriki is a skilful editor and has done his work well."

War Office.

LORD KITCHENER.

LEAVES THE WAR OFFICE FOR THE FRONT.

LONDON, Nov. 6.

Despite denials in the papers it is generally assumed that Lord Kitchener has left the War Office, but only in order to take up an equally important post elsewhere. It is hinted in some quarters that he will take charge of affairs in the Near East. There is no suggestion whatever of a disagreement in the Cabinet.

LATER.

The Press Bureau announces that Lord Kitchener, at the request of his colleagues, has left England for a short visit to the Eastern War Theatre.

HORRIBLE FIGHTING IN ARGONNE.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 6.

A German correspondent at the Western Front describes the new spirit of the trench fighting, which is more desperate, more violent and cruel owing to embankment resulting from the great French offensive last September. Hitherto the most merciless fighting has been in Argonne, with wooded country favouring savage warfare, producing the "Argonne type," which is known on the whole front. This picture of a frenzied, grimy fighter is reminiscent of primeval days when men fought like cannibals and wild animals. Now in general the same horrible methods are adopted along the whole line and victory lies with the hand to hand fighting; the battle swaying with thrusting, wrestling, throttling and biting; with knife, bayonet, riflebutt and spade. The real zone of horror is between the trenches where multitudes of rats are fattening on the rotting corpses and grow fat till they resemble little dogs, and are slaughtered with loathing when they stray into the trenches.

Gone are the chivalrous days when hours were daily practically set apart by the Franco-German soldiers, who emerged from their trenches and exchanged chaff. Now instead of pointed jokes, missives are exchanged which are unpleasant and hateful.

THE NEW YORK PRESS AGAINST GERMAN AMERICANS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

The Press vigorously supports President Wilson on the subject of German-Americans.

The Herald says that it is high time the small, noisy groups of alien sympathizers were brought to book.

The Evening Sun says "Let us have no rawish sentimentality, but clean out the whole nest of plotters and punish them with exemplary severity."

All these are sure signs of clogging blood impurity, calling for immediate treatment through the blood, so don't waste your time and money on useless lotions and messy ointments, which cannot get below the surface of the skin.
What you want and what you must have is a medicine that will get right to the matter which alone is the true cause of all your suffering. Clarke's Blood

A communique says: "We have completely checked two fresh German at-the Germans manufacture poison gas."

VIOLENT ENEMY ATTACKS.

actions have continued in Artois, particularly around Loos. Violent fighting is proceeding unabated in Champagne.
North of Mamez the enemy, with the usual preparations, launched large forays and succeeded in gaining small portions of the French first-line of checked or repulsed everywhere else."

BRITAIN'S OFFERS TO GREECE.

Statement By M. Venizelos.

A telegram from Athens states that M. Venizelos has declared that Great Britain's offer of Cyprus was independent of the result of the war, while other promises and concessions were conditional on the success of the Allies.
Beside Cyprus, Greece was to acquire part of Vilayet and Thrace, and Bulgarian Thrace. Bulgaria being reduced to her frontiers before the Balkan war.
In return for this the Entente Powers only required the assistance of the smaller units of the Greek fleet.

LONDON, Nov. 6.

The Press Bureau announces that during Lord Kitchener's temporary absence on public duty, Mr. Asquith Office. There is no truth in the statement circulated to day that Lord Kitchener has resigned.

THE GREEK CABINET CRISIS.

The King and M. Zaimis.

ATHENS, Nov. 5.

The King has proposed that M. Zaimis should retain the Premiership, but he has refused, on the ground that he only accepted it provisionally before in order to ease the situation, and the dissolution would entail on him active participation in internal politics, which he had already declined to do. The King has now summoned a Ministers' Council.

FRENCH SUCCESS.

PARIS, Nov. 6.

A communique states: "The Bulgarians, despite violent artillery proprietations, completely failed on the 3rd inst. in attacking the French bridgehead at Krivolak. The French, on the same day, carried two villages west and east of Babrovo, and attacked the frontier ridges."

TEHRAN, Nov. 7. ## M. SAZONOFF.

PETERSBURG, Nov. 7. It appears that the reports that M. Sazonoff, the Russian Premier, had resigned are unfounded.

(Havas Service.)

French Stock now stands at 65. Yesterday in Champagne and northward of Meuse, the enemy succeeded in gaining a few portions of the trenches of our first line. To-day in Champagne we repulsed new attacks and exploded mines in Agence.

Petersburg.—In the Drinsk and Volina regions the enemy was repulsed and abandoned 1000 killed, we took 160 prisoners. We routed the Austrians westward of Relatziwa, taking 250 prisoners, 2 guns and ammunition. Nish.—The Serbians, with the help of Franco-British troops, routed the Bulgarian army at Babouna Pass, and occupied Laster and Gradski.

LORD KITCHENER.

Rumours Regarding the Canal.

LONDON, Nov. 7. The Press Bureau announces that Lord Kitchener's resignation has already been denied. It is equally untrue that he tendered his resignation to the King, that his visit to the King related thereto, or that his visit to the Eastern theatre of war be tokens his resignation. On the contrary, the visit is being undertaken in the discharge of his duties as Secretary of State for War, which he has no intention of abandoning.

LATER. The latest statement, purporting to be authoritative, is that Lord Kitchener will be back at the War Office next week, and that he intends to remain at the War Office until the end of the war. He had not contemplated visiting the King, and the summons to the Palace was entirely unexpected. His Majesty the King is feeling a little better, and he desired a chat. The conversation was entirely general.

SPECULATION.

Another telegram states that there is much speculation regarding Lord Kitchener's departure from the War Office. The Times offers "explanatory considerations, not without authority," and says that it may be taken for granted that Lord Kitchener's mission is altogether different in character from his previous visits to France. Otherwise, he would not need a substitute at the War Office. It should be remembered that Lord Derby's scheme freed Lord Kitchener from the business of recruiting, and he will thus be at liberty to direct his attention to other matters, of which the most important is the war in the Near East, of which Lord Kitchener has first-hand knowledge. Therefore, it would not be unnatural if he devoted himself entirely, in consultation with the Allies, to the settlement of that tangled problem. The rumour that he would command the army in France is entirely without foundation. The newspaper speculates Mr. Asquith's assumption of the duties at the War Office with the reorganization of a higher direction of the war, which is now proceeding.

LONDON NEWSPAPER OFFICE.

RAIDED.

Dr. H. C. Official Attack. London, Nov. 7. Following the publication on Friday of a report that Lord Kitchener had resigned, and its reversion yesterday, the police last evening raided the offices of the Globe, and seized the printing plant and type.

LATER. The seizure of the Globe is the most drastic official step taken against a daily paper since the outbreak of war. No reason was given, but it is presumed that it is a result of the Globe's assertion on Friday that Lord Kitchener had resigned, while the paper on Saturday displayed posters with the words: "Kitchener and politicians: the Globe re-asserts." The police, did their work in a most thorough manner, seizing all the copies of Friday's and Saturday's issues, cutting off the electric current for the printing machines and removing the stereotype plates. There were no arrests.

GERMANIAL DELAYS.

ATHENS, Nov. 7.

The delays in the Greek censorship destroy the chronological order of telegrams. Consequently, there has been a great confusion on the position of the crisis. From the latest telegrams it appears that M. Zeimis persists in his refusal to form a Cabinet.

GERMAN INTRIGUE IN AMERICA.

Investigations Being Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.

The Federal investigators into the German loan conspiracy have begun an enquiry into the purposes of $41,000,000 which was raised in the United States by the sale of German bonds. It is believed that the fund was intended, firstly, to purchase ships, employable as neutral boats, for carrying supplies ostensibly to Scandinavia but really to Germany; secondly, to purchase stocks of chemicals and tools for the manufacture of explosives; and thirdly, for the establishment of submarine bases at Mexico and in the West Indies.

BRITISH TROOPS IN THE FIGHTING LINE.

PARIS, Nov. 7.

A Salonika correspondent says that the British troops in the fighting line are advancing to the uttermost. The Bulgarians are violently but futilely bombarding the French positions at Krivolak. The Bulgarian attacks in the Perlepe region are meeting with a stubborn Serbian resistance. Fresh troops are leaving for the Serbian front, whither convoys of arms, ammunition and victuals are also being despatched. The Serbian army is slowly re-concentrating.

RECRUITING SCENES.

Irish Emigrants Held Up.

LONDON, Nov. 7.

The Cunard Company announced yesterday that it cannot accept bookings from Britishers eligible for military service. This was a sequel to the scenes of excitement at Liverpool upon the sailing of the Saxonia for New York. When a number of Irish emigrants appeared the recruiting agents got busy, and the crowd jeered the Irishmen. Then the fireman of the Saxonia landed and told the officials that they would refuse to sail if the Irish shirkers were allowed aboard. The Cunard Company upheld the fireman, and refused the Irishmen passage. Six of the latter immediately joined the army.

BRITISH TRANSPORT SUNK.

Many Lives Lost.

LONDON, Nov. 6.

The War Office announces that the British transport steamer was sunk by the attack of an enemy submarine on September 19th, in the Aegean Sea. There were about 380 Aegean troops aboard, 75 of whom were saved along with 28 of the crew. A number of boats were sunk by shell fire. The survivors reached the island of Anta Cythera in their own boats, and were hospitably treated by the Greeks.

EASTERN FRONT.

A RUSSIAN VICTORY.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.

A communique states:—The Russian victory in the Strypa region ended after several days desperate fighting near the village of Semikortze and on the western shore of Lake Ischyna. The surprise attack of the Russians was conducted with swiftness against the enemy's front, and included the crossing of the river Strypa, which the enemy totally unexpected. The difficulties of the Russians began with the despatch of a haul of prisoners to the rear. These had to be sent across the river and the lake in the face of most determined efforts by the Germans to recover their comrades. The enemy poured deadly artillery and rifle fire into the Russian rearguard, which was in charge of the prisoners on the right bank of the Strypa, but the Russians faced all the attacks and, protected by gusts of fire by their own artillery, did not retire to the left bank till the prisoners and booty had safely crossed. The Russians also captured 800 prisoners and two guns west of Rafalovka.

LATER.

The Russians, in a surprise attack, captured 8,500 prisoners in the region of the river Strypa, besides a number of officers and machine-guns which are not yet determined.

VIOLENT RUSSIAN ATTACKS.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 7.

General Russky has evidently got General von Hindenburg into difficulties. A Berlin communique admits violent Russian attacks among the lakes in the Drinsk region, emphasising four successive attacks at one point. General Linsengh is also engaged against the Russian offensive, while General Bohmer claims to be counter-attacking after a recent defeat.

RECONSTRUCTION OF THE CABINET.

LATER.

M. Zeimis will be entrusted with the reconstruction of the Cabinet. The Chamber will be dissolved, but the old Ministers will retain their portfolios. There will be new Ministers of Public Worship and Justice.

THE KING'S DECISION.

ATHENS, Nov. 5.

It seems certain that the King is determined to keep M. Zeimis and the Cabinet in power and to dissolve Parliament, but M. Zeimis does not agree on the latter point, and the King has appointed him Minister of War and Aide-de-Camp General as a mark of his appreciation of his conduct. This has caused a painful impression among the Venezuelians, who regard it as a blow to their leader's prestige, but they are hopeful of the results at the coming elections.

AUSTRALIA'S WAR FINANCE.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 5.

The Commonwealth Treasurer, in his interim financial statement, has estimated the expenditure for 1914-15 to be £74,000,000 sterling, and the revenue to be £26,500,000. A further loan of £23,750,000 will be required for military expenditure on the expeditionary forces, and £38,500,000 for providing 225,000 men in June.

AUSTRALIAN POLITICS.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 5.

The Premier, in the House of Representatives, announced that the Premier of the several States, having agreed to ask the State Parliaments to grant the Commonwealth, during the war, and for one year afterwards, powers sought by a referendum, with certain limitations, the Federal Government had decided to postpone the referendum. The compromise has given general satisfaction, obviating, as it does, political turmoil in war time.

NEW ENLISTMENT SCHEME.

HOW SAMOA WAS TAKEN.

Admiral's Short Way With The Germans.

The story of the well-planned and admirably executed New Zealand expedition which seized German Samoa in the Pacific is told in an official White Paper. The brief and pointed letters interchanged between Rear Admiral Paty, commanding the Allied fleet of Samoa, and the Acting Governor, Sir R. Bingham, have not before been noticed and are now quoted. Admiral Paty wrote: "I have the honour to inform you that I am off the port of Apia with an overwhelming force, and in order to avoid unnecessary bloodshed, I will not open fire if you surrender immediately."

"I therefore summon you to surrender to me forth with the town of Apia and the Imperial possessions under your control. An answer must be delivered within half an hour to the bearer."

The Acting Governor replied: "According to the principles of the rights of nations, especially the agreements of the Second Hague Peace Conference, the bombardment of our harbours and protectorates is forbidden, also the threat to do so."

"I therefore respectfully protest against your Excellency's proposal. For the rest, to avoid the military measures which you propose, I have given orders for the wireless telegraph station to be picked up and that no resistance is to be offered."

"Thus easily was possession taken of a valuable Colony. The subjects of the Entente Powers resident in the island petitioned the British authorities to show the German Government and officials special consideration in return for the kind manner in which they had themselves been treated."
